Corps

: a body of people who are engaged in a particular activity integrity - Choosing courage over comfort; it's choosing what's right over what's fun, fast, or easy; and it's practicing your values, not just professing them teamwork - We build each other up, give credit where credit is due and rely on each other's insights and expertise #### adaptability - Be visionary

Pioneer new services and methods, always willing to be innovative in order to release captives and affect change in our community. We recognize visionary efforts fail, but we are determined to fail by doing rather than not doing #### empowerment - Value the individual

We believe in equal opportunity and justice for all. Created in the image of God, people of all nationalities, ages and functions have distinctive contributions and callings. We are committed to honoring God-given leadership and ministry gifts

faith - Run to the battle

We have an invisible enemy bent on our destruction and the hoped for failure of our ministry. We have to make a daily determination to run to the battle of the day to be a fighter for those in captivity in our future generations - we create strategy and programming not just for the current victims and survivors of human trafficking, but also engaging in activities to minimize the prevalence of this injustice in the future

reliability - we do what you say we'll do. we don't over promise and are able to deliver on commitments and balance competing priorities stewardship - Do a lot with a little. We work collaboratively and strategically to maximize any resources we steward #### rest - Trust God to do "the saving"

We are neither a savior nor The Savior. We trust the Lord knows the pain of each of our clients and the cries of those not rescued yet. We pause in our work frequently to ask Him to fight for our clients and give us wisdom on how to be a part of the battle generosity - in time, resources and relationships with others. Extending the most generous interpretation to the intentions, words, and actions of others. The assumption of generosity is believing that people are doing the best they can
